How Animals Use Sound to Communicate

hhmi BioInteractive

Introduction to Animal Communication

Animals have evolved a variety of mechanisms to communicate with each other. Communication is used in courtship, territorial defense, warning about predators, social play, aggressive interactions, parental care, group defense, and cohesion among members of a family or social groups.

Animal communication involves the transfer of information, in the form of a signal from a sender to a receiver.

Communication involves one individual sending a signal and one or more individuals receiving and interpreting that signal.
